Death of Henry Bachstadt.

Mr. Henry Bachstadt, well known in German circles, died yesterday afternoon at his home, 469 I street southwest, after a short and painful illness. He had been suffering from rheumatism for several days past, and yesterday morning his illness took a serious turn. Four physicians were summoned at once, but they were unable to do anything for him and he died at a late hour in the day. The doctors thought it best to make a thorough investigation before issuing a death certificate, and this gave rise to a rumor that his death was not from natural causes. One of the physicians who attended him, however, states to the police last night that so far as he was concerned he was willing to give a certificate that Mr. Bachstaut had died from heart trouble superinduced by rheumatism, and that will probably end the

PRAISE FOR MR. PUGH

His Course Against the Trolley Nuisance Meets General Approval.

He is Confident That He Will Procure a Conviction of the Ecking-

The prosecution instituted against the Eckington road by Prosecuting Attorney Pugh is the first case of its kind against a trolley road in this city, and is attracting widespread attention. Being the first case, Mr. Pugh did not file one of his proposed daily informations today and will not do so until Judge Miller passes upon the case Monday.

Since starting the prosecution Mr. Pugh has received several letters bearing on the occupation of New York avenue by the trolley poles and wires, and, in every instance, the writer has given words of praise and encouragement to the prosecutor. This morning's mail brought to Mr. Pugh a letter from a clerk in one of the departments which reads:

Approving His Course.

"I am glad you have taken hold of that Eckington trolley case, and hope you will push it to the utmost limit of your power. That corporation has no more right to cbstruct the public highway in defiance of law than has the citizen merchant the sidewalk, and the same vigorous measures on your part toward the former as were ap-plied to the latter will ultimately bring them to a realization of their rights and duty in the premises. Your purpose, as in-dicated in The Star of yesterday, to bring a separate action for every pole on the ave nue is a good one, and I hope it will be car a separate action for every pole on the avenue is a good one, and I hope it will be carried out, if necessary.

"The course of a public officer in endeavoring to enforce the law should at all times be encouraged and approved, and never more so than when its violators are a wealthy and influential corporation. In writing you this letter I but voice the sentiment of a great number of those who have been subjected to the annoyances of this company's line for the past several years, and now that the public, through their lawful representative, has it by the throat it is to be hoped that you will use every proper means in your power to bring it to a realization of the fact that it is but a creature of the public's creation and must obey the will of its creator."

Confident of a Conviction. Confident of a Conviction.

In conversation with a Star reporter this morning Mr. Pugh said there was no doubt about the result in the case. The law is being violated, and the court will certainly hold the violators. In this connection Mr. Pugh referred to the case of the telegraph companies being prosecuted for stringing wires over housetops. In that case the court held there was a violation, and in this case the facts are such that a clearer and better defined case can be made out. After Monday, said Mr. Pugh, daily informations will be filed if the court holds the company table and that will subter the company Monday, said Mr. Fugli, will be filed if the court holds the company liable, and that will subject the company to a fine of $25 or $50 a day. This, he thinks, will have the desired effect, and the company will comply with the law.

KING IDENTIFIED.

Recognized as the Man Who Entered Mr. Emmert's House.

Detective Boardman went to New York last evening with Edward Castell, butler for Senator Wolcott, for the purpose of identifying William King, who is under arrest there on suspicion of having robbed Mr. Emmert's house on 16th street, and having attempted to effect an entrance at the Senator's residence. This morning Inspector Hollinberger received a telegram from Detective Boardman stating that the prisoner had been identified as the one who attempted to enter Senator Wolcott's residence. He had two watches on him, and it is thought that one of them may belong to Mr. Emmert. Soon after the robbery at Mr. Emmert's and also at a house on 14th street occurred, King and a companion were suspected, but it was not until night before last that the arrest was made. having attempted to effect an entrance at Execution. After Travers had been executed yesterday a Star reporter talked with Joseph A Beam, who is to be hanged at the District jail next Friday for the murder of his stepdaughter, Mrs. Annie L. Leahy, on the 22c of last December. It is the opinion of the prison officials that the man, who has been apparently wholly indifferent to his fate will collapse, and his manner yesterday afternoon was such as to indicate that such a thing is more than probable. Heretofore in his interview with the reporter Beam appeared as a man who not only did not fear death, but really welcomed the release which it brings from the cares of this world. But yesterday his indifference to death seemed to be assumed. He was to death seemed to be assumed. He was as violently profane as heretofore, and he seemingly gloried as much as ever in his crime. And while he assured the reporter that the hanging of Travers yesterday morning had not had the slightest effect upon him, it was clearly apparent that the miserable man was in a state of high nervous excitement.

He spoke of the execution of Travers as He spoke of the execution of Travers as an ordinary incident of life, and with an oath declared that he himself had never feared death, and, if he had to hang next Friday, would face the music unflinchingly. "Why, damn it to hell," he exclaimed, "they can only destroy this temple of clay," striking his chest, "but they can't kill this soul, which is immortal."

Then the unfortunate man spoke of his sorime cursing the woman he killed, and

Then the unfortunate man spoke of his crime, cursing the woman he killed, and saying that he regretted not naving had an opportunity to kill others, who, he declared, had hounded him to death. He declared, too, that he had not received a fair trial, claiming that the court had determined that he should be convicted, and had virtually hypnotized his counsel. But while they might put his body in the grave, "My soul," he exclaimed, "will, like that of old John Brown, go marching on, and about '96 you people here will hear from both of us."

Beam, until yesterday, had intimated to the visiting clergyman that he knew as much of the hervafter as they did, and could take care of himself. Yesterday, much of the hereafter as they did, and could take care of himself. Yesterday, however, he requested Father Sullivan and a colored clergyman to see him, and he talked with them yesterday and today with seemingly great satisfaction. Now, too, he is devoting himself to reading the Bible, and when the reporter called at his cell this afternoon the book of books lay open on his cot beside him.

Thomas J. Taylor, also sentenced to be hanged next Friday for wife murder, fully realizes his unfortunate position, but is evidently buoying himself up with the hope that his sentence will be commuted. Yesterday's execution had a most distressing effect upon him, nevertheless, and the jail officials fear that he, too, will collapse if the President refuses to interfere.

New National Theater .-- There will be one more week of comedy at the New National Theater. For Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings and at the Saturday wednesday evenings and at the Saturday matinee "All the Comforts of Home" is announced. Thursday evening Mrs. J. C. Keightley's "Sealed Instructions" will be given. Friday night Charies I. Fawcett's farcical comedy, "An Awful Affair," will be revived, and the farewell bill Saturday night will be Jerome K. Jerome's "Barbara" and Henry J. Byron's "Partners for Life."

Charles Coote's Benefit.—Mr. Chas. Coote, who has made a host of friends in this city not only by his excellent work with the National Theater Comedy Company, but also on account of his genial manners and personal qualities, will receive a benefit on the 30th instant. It will take place at the Grand Opera House, and already a large amount of talent has volunteered. Mr. Burt Riddle, who is managing the affair, says the number of those anxious to assist Mr. Coote is very large, and accessions to the list are coming in daily. The trouble is whom to select. Aiready M. A. Kennedy, Elsie Lower, J. J. Pischer and the Apollo Quartet are announced. The sale of seats has commenced and a large number 's already engaged. Charles Coote's Benefit .- Mr. Chas. A BRIGHT BOY DROWNED.

Details of the Sad Death of Young Clarence Jardine.

Clarence W. Jardine, a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. E. I. Booraem of 1008 O street northwest, was drowned in Jones' Falls on the outskirts of Baltimore. Thursday morning. Clarence has been living at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Booraem for seven years, and at the close of school had gone to visit his mother, from whom he had been separated for a number of years, his father having died when he was five years father having died when he was five years old. In company with another lad, Alonzo Harries, he went in swimming at a place called Snake Hole. His companion swam across the narrow stream in safety, but Clarence, diving from a rock, went down to the depth of ten feet. His body did not rise to the surface. Alarm was immediately given, and Mr. George Bouldin, who was fishing near by, ran to the spot, and, diving down, brought the body up. Every effort was made to resuscitate the lad, but without avail. out avail.

was made to resuscitate the lad, but without avail.

From the account given by his companion, his head must have struck a boulder, which stunned him.

Clarence was a bright lad, and had many friends among the boys in Hamline Sunday school, of which he was a member.
He was also a member of the Junior Epworth League, and a scholar in the class of Mrs. Fannie Polkinhorn. His sudden death was a great shock to his relatives, and especially so to the family of Mr. and Mrs. Booraem. who were looking for his return in September to continue his studies.
His remains were interred in St. Mary's cemetery, on Roland avenue, Baltimore.

LAMPS MUST BE LIGHTED

Judge Miller Determined to Enforce the Offenders Who Passed in the Motley Procession Before the Police Court Today.

Bicycle Law.

Policemen Sullivan and Whalen of Lieut Kelly's precinct were on fluty on Pennsyl vania avenue last night, and they made more cases than all the other officers in their precinct. The result was that they occupied more of the time of the Police Court this morning than did the others. In one case they had two defendants, and the charge against them was that they rode their bicycles on the brightly lighted avenue without the necessary lighted lamps

William Chaney, a small boy, who is in the post office messenger service, was one of the defendants, "And," said Lawyer Smith, "his arrest was an obstruction to the United States mails." "The question of mail has nothing to do with the case," the court remarked. "If he was violating the law the arrest was proper."

"He had no light on his wheel," said the officer. "Very few of them have lights, but it is impossible to catch many of them."

An earnest plea was made in the boy's behalf, and it was stated that the Commissioners had issued an order making an exception of mail carriers.

A fine of $5$ was imposed, and the judge said he would probably reconsider the matter when he got the order.

Later in the day Judge Miller was furnished a copy of the Commissioners' order making an exception of mail carriers, and the charge against the boy was dismissed.

James Nagle was the other defendant, and he claimed ignorance of the law, as he had only been in the city about five months.

"I have not been in the habit of riding at night," he said, "but last night I did go out."

The Law's Intention Explained. "This law," explained the judge, "was made to protect pedestrians and not to punish bicycle riders. It's a law that is oing to be enforced when the cases are brought here."

Because of the fact that Nagle is virtual ly a stranger his personal bonds were taken.
Charles Rollins and James Robinson were next called. They are small colored boys, who were barefooted, but wore neat clothes.

They, too, were on Pennsylvania avenue last night, and when a cable car came along they jumped on the moving vehicle to get a breath of fresh air.

Just at that time the two policemen came along and arrested them for engaging in the dangerous practice of jumping on the moving cable trains.

Judge Miller said that every boy who engaged in such business ought to be arrested, and imposed a $5 fine.

Percy Scheller was tried for fast driving.

He drives a wagon in which he carries New York papers, and he says it's necessary in his business to drive fast. He was fined $5, which he paid. Charged With Crap Shooting.

"I am not guilty," answered Lee Colenan, a young colored man, against whom there was a charge of unlawful assembly. "He was playing crap, your honor," said Policeman Vermillion, "but when I started for him he got away." "When was this?"

"On Tuesday afternooh."
"No, sir," said Coleman, "the police-man's wrong, because I was in the country that day." Whereabouts in the country?" the judge

"Whereabouts in the country?" the judge asked him.
"At Indian Head."
"Doing what?"
"Working with brickmakers."
The prisoner declared that he did not return to the city until Wednesday.
"I saw him earlier in the day," the officer said. "Doing what?" "Sitting on a beer keg in front of a bar oom."

"I haven't been sitting on a beer keg ince I came from down the river."
Coleman said that his cousin knew when he came home.

Judge Miller heard the explanations of both the officer and the prisoner and imposed a fine of $5.

The Credit System Stopped. "I'm guilty of being drunk," answered a colored man named Eustace Thornton. "But, judge, your honor, will you let me speak for myself?"

"Certainly," said the judge, "after the officer gives his testimony." "Thornton was drunk last night," Police man Carllson told the court, "and when laroused him he was noisy and did not want to move."
"Judge, I was drinking last night and fell asleep on the pavement," said the prisoner, "and if you let me go I'll try to do better in the future."

The usual fine was imposed.

"Judge, will you give me time to go and get the money?" Thornton asked.

"No, sir," the judge answered; "the credit business is stopped. There are many persons out now looking for money to pay fines."

He went back.

Expect Clemency. In response to the inquiry from the committee of East Washington citizens ad-dressed to the President, asking if he would receive them in the matter of a commutation of the death sentence imposed upon Thomas J. Taylor for wife murder, Private Secretary Thurber telegraphed the commit-tee yesterday afternoon that the case is so fully before the President that a visit of the committee is not desirable. While the telegram may be interpreted either favorably or unfavorably, the committee feel that it should be interpreted favorably, and they confidertly expect, it is said, that clemency will be extended to the unfortunate man nate man.

Undue Influences.

A notice of contest in the matter of the estate of the late Terrence McCaffrey has been filed by his granddaughter, Mary Estelle McCaffrey, who alleges that the dated January 21, 1805, was procured by fraud and undue influence of Mary Ellen McCaffrey, a daughter of the deceased.

Death of George W. Sims. Mr. George W. Sims, local manager of the Keystone Plaster Company, died Thursday afternoon at his home in Falls Church Mr. Sims was highly respected, and was a prominent member of the lodge of Odd Fellows at his home. His funeral will be held this afternoon at Falls Church.

Wants a Receiver. A bill in equity has been filed by Geo. W.

Harrison, praying that the partnership between him and Rob't C. Holtzman in the White Elephant saloon, on 9th street, be dissolved and a receiver appointed. The complainant says he was to furnish the funds and the defendant time and experience. The venture has not been successful, he claims, and he therefore desires the business closed.
